Why Don't They Marry?

A MATRIMONIAL ESSAY.
From the London Examiner.

"Why dont they marry?" is a question that young ladies and anxious mammas often ask, and will never cease asking until the one only satisfactory answer is given, "They have married." As however, that happy time seems, at present, about as distant as the melennium, we must remain content with a less decisive answer. We are aware that this is a momentous topic, from which the rash and profane should be warned of. It profoundly affects two great interests—the hearts of young ladies and the pockets of their papas. These two interests find their deepest expression in the most ineradical passion of the human mind, the maternal anxiety for the settlement of female children. Who can conceive the joy that would run through society were the mighty secret discovered and matrimony made universal? To convert all the marriageable young men into Benedicts would be an achievement compared with which the discovery of the philospher's stone would be child's play. Such projects are too great for us; be ours the humbler and less grateful task to point out one of the chief impediments to matrimony. This imposes the duty of looking at the subject in its least lovely aspect, in its prosaic troubles and inglorious cares. These things he keeps most religiously out of sight. His readers are presented with fascinating pictures that heat the imagination. They feel grateful to him for the illusions, although they are not helped one step towards realizing the blissful visions upon which their imagination feeds. Now if we had no stomachs, if nature had kindly furnished us with an epidermis proof against the extremes of cold and heat, the treatment of the novelist would be as comprehensive as it is delightful. But our constitution is very different. In the lower classes it is well known that the marriage rate has an intimate connection with the price of wheat, and in the highest money has a great deal to do, not with the desire for matrimony always, but certainly with the execution of it.

Who are accustomed to complain that men don't marry? Not the working class. A mechanic just out of his apprenticeship is as able to support a wife as he is likely to be at any future period of his life. Unless he hopes by saving money to rise out of his class and become an employer, he has little inducement to refrain from marriage. It is where gentility begins, and the hankering after gentility, that the disinclination of men to pass under the yoke becomes apparent; and the more genteel the grade, the stronger does the reluctance become. Shopkeepers and clerks, who have aspirations towards, if not affinities with, higher circles, hold out longer. Doctors, as become creatures higher in the scale of being, reach maturity considerably later; as for young solicitors and barristers, they seem almost like the angels in heaven, who never marry nor are given in marriage, although we fear there the comparison ends.

While in the ascending scale there is a growing unwillingness to contract marriage, the usefulness of the wife appears to dimish. The wife of a workingman is cook, housemaid, nursery-maid, everything; all the manifold forms of service developed by the division of labor are summed up in her own person. When the poor woman, as is too often the case, has a large family, her work is, in proportion to her strength, more severe than her husband's. She costs less than a servant, so that, if she dies, leaving young children, her widower has no alternative but to marry again. If we measure her services in money, they will compare favorably with her husband's; indeed she contributes to the common expenses, if not to the same amount, at least equally according to her strength. Can the same be said of a wife in the middle class? Her position is greatly superior. She is indefinitely better provided with the necessaries, and has almost exclusive enjoyment of the luxuries of life. She is released from domestic drudgery, her chief serious occupation being to look after servants. The pay has grown better while the work has become less. Does not the lady get more and give less than the workingman's wife? But, it may be said, the same is true of her husband compared with the workingman. It is one of the stock reproaches of proletariat orators against the present distribution of property, that the harder the work the less is the pay. There is, however, a clear distinction. Where men are highly paid, their work must be of a kind that few are actually found competent to perform, or it is such that no one can do it without a long and extensive preparation. Great artists command their own price, because the public prepare to compete for the works of the best men, rather than to remain content with the productions of those who are only a little way from the front. A doctor is more highly paid than an apothecary, because the profession involves a more expensive education. But these reasons do not seem to have much application to women. Every girl is, or is foudly believed to be, able to manage a household; and the education of girls is neither so protracted nor so costly as that of boys. Women, and especially literary women, when given to magnifying their office, may demur to this view. We may be told that the management of two or three servants is a gigantic undertaking. Women of an active disposition make work for themselves wherever they are; but their energy, when confined within the four walls of home, is rather mischievous. Having no sufficient occupation, they "meddle and muddle;" they worry the servants, they keep the house in a turmoil, and achieve a barren perfection by sacrificing all real comfort. Viewing the wife as a housekeeper, we fear her value cannot be rated very high. There are few housekeepers who are not very much cheaper. If a man marries for the sake of house keeping, he has a decidedly poor bargain.

The Career of Pio Nono.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE AND CAREER OF PIO NONO—INTERESTING REMINISCENCES OF THE PONTIFF.

The London Figaro says: Toward the end of the sixteenth century a combmaker Alberto Mastai, of Brescia, with whom the world did not go well, went to live at Sinigaglia. Fortune smiled on him in his new home; the combmaker flourished and became so rich that he obtained the hand of a young lady of fortune named Ferretti, and at the same time the rank of count. Such is the origin of the house of Mastai-Ferretti. Girolamo Mastai-Ferretti, descended from the latter, married a daughter of Count Sallnezi, and the issue of this marriage was Gian Maria Mastai, born in 1792, now Pius IX. From his infancy he seems to have been weak, subject to epileptic fits, and difficult to manage. When a boy, he was sent to the college at Volterra, presided over by the learned astronomer, In thirama; but his chronic indisposition did not permit him to derive much advantage from that seat of learning. On returning home, however, his health greatly improved, and as he grew stronger, he manifested a keen desire to enter the army. To fit himself for this profession, he devoted much time to athletic exercises, and soon became remarkable for his military bearing. Those familiar with the appearance of Pius IX., as seen at St. Peter's, or the Sistine, will scarcely be prepared to hear that in his youth he was noted for his dandy dress, appearing always in a semi-military uniform, wearing boots and spurs, and seldom seen without a cigar in his mouth. Being very handsome withal, a tolerable poet and good musician, he soon became an object of admiration to many, and of affection to some girls; but although more than one loved him, he aimed high and sought the hand Elena, daughter of Prince Albani. This lady who is said to have been extremely beautiful, at first encouraged young Mastai, but eventually married the colonel of a regiment quartered at Sinigaglia, whom she was in the habit of meeting frequently at the reunions in her father's house. The disappointment was so severely felt by the young man that, to alleviate his misery he plunged into dissipation, drank deeply, and gambled largely. About this juncture Napoleon's career had terminated. Pius VII returned to Rome, and public affairs began to assume a tranquil phase. Accordingly, young Mastai, who was leading a very unsettled life, returned to Rome, where two of his uncles resided, who, it was believed, were in a position to be of service to him.

Arrived in the capital, he engaged a very humble apartment, his allowance being only a few pounds a month. Nevertheless, so fascinating were his manners and so handsome his person, that he soon became one of the most fashionable young men in Rome, and was a constant visitor in the palaces of the highest nobles in that city. A successful player at the card table, his winnings enabled him to live in a manner that made him the envy of less fortunate youths, and led to love adventures not yet entirely forgotton in Rome. But though young Mastai was well pleased with the life he was leading, it was far from satisfying his parents, who naturally desired to see their son established in some honorable profession. Accordingly, as the military spirit still burned, strong in Gian-Maria, an attempt was made to satisfy it, to some extent at least by placing him in the guardia mobile, which had been established immediately after the Congress of Vienna. His interest was sufficiently great to cause him to be enrolled as a candidate for admission in the corps, but a representation having been made to the Secretary of State that he was subject to epileptic fits his name was removed from the list of candidates, and he was advised that he must not hope to be a guardia mobile. The intelligence overwhelmed him with sorrow; his spirits became depressed; a dangerous illness supervened; on his recovery from which—due, as his biographers declare, to the intercession of the blessed virgin—he determined on devoting his life to the cause of religion.

There are many still living in Rome who remember the sudden and extraordinary change in young Mastai. Discarding his fashionable costume, the neat boots, the clanking spur gave place to thick shoes and laced coat to black soutane, and the jaunty step to a measured walk, with a bent head and downcast eyes. At this period Mastai was twenty-four years old. Hard study followed, and finding that this, though pushed to excess, did not impair his health, but rather improved it—a change due more probably to all abstemious life—he conceived that God especially called him to the work of priesthood, and having obtained the necessary medical permission to enter the church, he was ordained. His religious zeal now rapidly unfolded. Endowed with a peculiarly fine voice, well remembered by those who have had the pleasure of hearing him read the offices in St. Peter's or the Sistine chapel, he studied elocution, practiced preaching extempore, and soon acquired such mastery of language as to draw vast crowds whenever he ascended the pulpit. He was particularly brilliant in his ferverini—short, impassioned discourses, such as you may hear during holy week at the Gesu—and carried his congregation entirely with him. Women who had admired Mastai as a youth of fashion now hung on his impassioned words, and buzzed around his confessional; strong minded men, too, became weak before him, for he shook their souls by his pictures in store for the wicked, simulating purgatorial flames by plunging his hands in burning spirits.

But, gratifying as was all this, the youthful priest sighed for more active occupation and a more active sphere of usefulness. An opportunity was not long wanting. Pius VII. having decided on sending a politico-religious mission to Chile, Mastai applied to be appointed secretary, and succeeded, though against the will of his family, in obtaining the appointment. The mission, headed by the Bishop of Civita de Castello, after a long and hazardous voyage, arrived at Buenos Ayres. The journey from that city to Chile was attended with great suffering, but although the mission underwent many perils, they were productive of no other effect on the secretary than that of causing him to desire to remain in the country; one reason, doubtless, being that his health, so far from being impaired by the hardship and climate, was sensibly ameliorated. Indeed, he has been heard more than once to say that he never enjoyed better health than during this period of his life; and so entirely did he enter into the spirit of the undertaking that when his chief, discouraged by the ill-successes attending his efforts to convert the natives, determined on returning to Europe, Mastai was for remaining in Chili at all hazards, preferring even possible martyrdom to abandoning a measure to which he had committed himself.

On Mastai's return to Europe, Leo XII filled the pontificial throne. This Pontiff, naturally enthusiastic and energetic, testified his appreciation of Mastai's conduct by creating him archbishop of Spoleto. When Gregory XVI. assumed the tiara, he was removed from Spoleto and created cardinal and bishop of Imola.

Though Mastai's early life was not by any means uneventful, yet the Romans knew very little of him until he was elevated to the tiara. In grateful remembrance of the kindness of Pius VII, he assumed the name of Pio. Such, in outline, was the earlier life of the great high priest of Rome—a man who, when he ascended the papal throne, was hailed by the liberal party with a frenzy of enthusiasm, but who soon by his policy became the champion of ultramontanism. In justice, however, let it be added that Pius IX, inherited an accumulation of difficulties, postponed and complicated by his predecessors.

A Kentucky Catacomb.

THE CRUMBLING SKELETONS OF TEN HUMAN BEINGS DISCOVERED IN A CAVE.

From the Glasgow, Ky., Times.

One day last week a party of hunters chased a fox into a cave about five miles from this place, on Beaver creek, near the residence of Rev. Wm. Neal. They entered the cave, and exploring it, found a number of bones in a small chomber that had heretofore been unknown to them. The cove, which is about twenty paces to the right of the Columbia road, on the hillside just beyond Beaver creek, is entered through a chasm in the earth which has solid rock walls. At the depth of twenty feet two avenues lead off, one to the right the other to the left; these avenues are large, easy of access, and have been often explored. In neither of them, however, have human remains been found, or anything of an unusual character discovered.

But in the right or southern avenue there is a small fissure in the rock that leads off in an eastern direction, just large enough to admit the body of a man. The fissure, which is about twenty feet in length, and is passed through with the utmost difficulty, leads to a small oblong chamber, eighteen feet in length and about twenty feet from floor to ceiling. Save the tortuous fissure by which access is gained to this mysterious chamber there is no visible outlet, nor evidence of one ever having existed. The walls and ceiling are almost literally composed of one solid rock, covered with the formations peculiar to the caves of this section of the country.

It is in this mysterious little chamber that the remains alluded to were found—those of at least ten human beings, in all. The skulls were found exposed above the surface, and on each there was a limestone formation, produced by the dripping of Rebellion and secession, crushed out as they were by the Union arms, do not yet lack champions and apologists. The old leaders of the Confederacy, covered with the blood of treason, still raise from time to time their dishonored heads and challenge at our hands recognition of the sincerity of their motives and the legitimacy of their cause. It seems to us that the most that can be asked of loyal men by proved and conquered traitors, is to be forgotten and forgiven. But amnesty does not satisfy them. They demand indemnity; they challenge a reversal of the judgment of the people and of History respecting their enormous crime, and in the Senate of the United States a proposition has just been grossly put forward by the Democratic Senator for Kentucky, looking to the restoration of Arlington Heights to the widow of the late Robert E. Lee. And more than that, the Senate had to endure a eulogy on that blood-stained traitor. Now, we have nothing to say of the merits of Lee as a General, or his deportment in private life, but we cannot put light for darkness and call evil good; we cannot cannonize the bones of General Lee or embalm his memory in the same cherished shrine of affection and reverence with other Virginians, with the beloved Farragut or the venerated Thomas. We cannot while adjuring and damning Treason in the same breath, land the traitor Lee "as a hero, gentleman and Christian," to use the words of McCreery's studied and exalted panagyric; no, not even to solace the conscience, heal the wounds or mollify the irritatedble sensibilities of the Democratic party, North or South.

A proposition to remove the sacred bones of Union soldiers from Arlington Heights, that the Lee family may go back there to spit upon and trample the graves of men who were mowed down in the ranks of death perhaps by this very Lee's command! What is the next backward, descending and infamous step to be proposed? Is it a national monument to Lee? If so, let it be built of the bones that whiten a hundred battle fields, and cemented by the tears of the widows and orphans of the soldiers that died a sacrifice on the altar of their country and for liberty! We can well imagine the torrent of indignant rebuke that followed the introduction of this Democratic resolution in the United States Senate compelling McCreery to incontinently withdraw it to escape the castigation of a vote.

Well might the Senator from Pennsylvania, John Scott, declare in his place with emphatic precision, that

"The coupling together of the names of Thomas and Lee, recalled the utterance of Stephen A. Douglass, made at the time those two Generals resolved to lead opposite paths, that at that time there were but two classes in the nation, patriots and traitors. The patience with which the Senate of the United States had to-day listened to the eulogy upon the chief conspirator in his attempt to tear down the Government was but another illustration of the unparalleled magnanimity and mercy which had had characterized the treatment by the government of those engaged in rebellion. Had the subject of that eulogy succeeded in his efforts, where would the American Senate now be setting? By his triumph slavery would have cast a dark shadow all over this land of freedom from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico. To-day the doctrine of secession is buried beneath the bones of thousands who fell that their blood might seal the covenant of the nation. To-day we behold the spectacle of a resurrectionist coming here to drag the dead doctrine out from beneath the bones of the nation's dead."

The remarks too, of Senator Sumner, on the same occasion fitly characterise the insult to the Senate, and the offense and wrong thus perpetrated or meditated upon the cause of Patriotism and a Ntionality.

"Mr. Sumner desired that Parliamentary laws should be administered upon the present occasion with the utmost rigor, with a view to the most summary disposition of the resolution. He had nothing to say of Gen. Lee, except that his name stood high upon the catalogue of those who had imbrued their hands in their country's blood. He was content to hand him over to the avenging pen of history; he regarded the resolution as indicative of the sentiment of the political associates of the Senator from Kentucky as prefiguring the policy they would establish should they obtain power, a policy which was to take old rebels by the hand and install them in high places of power. Could he make his voice heard from Massachusetts to Louisiana, it would be to warn his fellow-countrymen, especially of the South, against that combination which now showed its hand in the proposition of the Senator from Kentucky. He said he was present when Secretary Stanton gave the order for the interment of the dead bodies of Union soldiers at Arlington, and that Sec. Stanton stated at the time his purpose in selecting the place on which was forever to be prohibited the re-establishment of the Lee family there, and that if they did come they might encounter the ghosts of their victims. The epitaph of Shakespear, which has for two and a half centuries guarded the remains of England's greatest poet, he would write above the grave of every one of our patriot dead:

Good friends for Jesus sake forbe ar
To dig the dust inclosed here.
"Blessed be the man that spares these stones;
And cursed be he that moves my bones."

A Lying Spirit.

In the last number of Harper's Weekly is a pretty good illustration of "the lying spirit" that has entered into Gambetta, and seems to dictate his official report of the movements and engagements of the Prussian invader, and the French defender. The French minister is represented as standing in his cabinet or council room; at his back is the Goddess of Victory perusing a scroll on which are flaming words made "to ire the heart" of the French nation, while in the half open door stands the figure of Truth, of stern and majestic mien—seeking to enter the council, while Gambetta, with an air half flippant and half insolent, disputes the entrance of Truth and would abruptly slam the doorin her face. It is only another example of "the lying spirit" that animated and controlled the Napoleon dynasty, the same "lying spirit" that issued from the lips of Ollivier. It is the same "lying spirit" that of old by the mouth of false prophets, bade Ahab "go up to Ramoth Gilead and prosper." It is the same "lying spirit" that informed the Confederate councils at Richmond. But it was not such men as Gambetta that conducted the American colonies in the struggle for their liberties to a successful issue and triumph.

Extension of Telegraph Lines.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 15.

The Western Union Telegraph Company have extended their lines in the coal regions in this State, and now have offices open at the following places: Pottsville, Ashville, Schuylkill, Haven, Port Clinton, Hamburg, Mahony City, Shenandoah City, Mount Carmel and Hazelton. Offices will also be opened at St. Clair, Minersville, and Tamequa, as soon as lines can be built. Rates have been very much reduced in the coal regions by the opening of these offices.

Foreign News by Mail.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.

Late foreign mail advices state that the London Echo's Berlin correspondent telegraphs that a new treaty will be proposed with the neutralization of the Black Sea, and that a French representative will take his seat in behalf of the government nationale.

The semi-official St. Petersburg Galois says that the proposed conference being likely to consider the substance rather than form of the Russian demand, a pacification may be regarded as certain.

Advices from Constantinople state that General Ignau has been questioned as to the recent armaments and said they were insignificant for defensive purposes. Russia was prepared to give better guarantees for the safety of the Porte than those of the Paris treaty.

A Vienna correspondent of the London Standard telegraphs that a council of ministers, held at Pesth on the 2d, resolved that Austria would accept the proposed conference only if Russia expressly acknowledged its competency, and withdraw her notification, and lastly, if the other Powers agree to joint action in case Russia refuses.

The London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says it is stated on good authority that all powers, excepting France, have accepted the proposal for a conference. The date is not yet fixed, but London will be the place of assembly. It is not propable that Earl Granville will be requested to act as President.

A State dispatch says a correspondent at Versailles made a statement in conversation on the political situation, that Bismarck said that strong efforts were making for the restoration of the Emperor Napoleon, that the Congress on the Eastern question would not be held without a French plenipotentiary, that France had no authority to appoint one just now, and that he would not recognize the authority of men of the pavement set among their betters.

King William is anxious to return home, and even laments the sufferings of the German troops on account of the extreme cold.

The Thunderer Protests.

LONDON, Dec. 14.

The Times protests against the attitude of Prussia towards Luxemburg as well as against that of Russia towards Turkey. The attitude of both Powers, says the Times is indefensible, but it is not the duty of England to interpose.

Precautionary.

A force of nearly 3,000 cavalry and infantry has been ordered to Londonderry for fear of disturbance at the approaching anniversary of the establishment of the Union of Great Britain and Ireland.

The recent rumor of an impending trade crisis in China is contradicted.

Inside Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 9.

Food is scarce and weather bad. Moltke's letter announcing the capture of Orleans causes great excitement. The people are still resolved on resistance. Sharpshooters have been disbanded for fear of a fight with the National Guards and unfortunate dissensions daily occur amongst officers. One commander of artillery refused to obey orders of Ducrot and Blanchard, had a violent quarrel and the latter has been displaced by another officer.

LONDON, Dec. 14.

French Reports.

BORDEAUX, Dec. 14.

The following news is official: There has been no serious engagement since the 10th. The evacuation of the triangle formed by the towns of Verneuil, Brezolles and Breux is confirmed.

In the Seine Interour the enemy are slowly withdrawing. Dieppe has been free since the 10th. Evreux and Zeureigny are occupied by the Germans. A number of small engagements, in which the French were successful, are reported on the left bank of the Loire. The Prussians occupy Contres, Mont Richard and Ramorantine.

The government has announced that the ports of Havre and Deippe are not open to neutral vessels.

Russian Losses.

Prisoners assert that the losses of the army of Prince Frederick Charles during their engagement with General Chauzey, have not been less than 20,000 men, and the villages in the neighborhood are filled with wounded.

There is no communication with the north of France.

The journals here demand prompt elections to the Constitutional Assembly.

News reached here that the Prussians surprised at Chambord, some Gardes Mobile and franc-tireurs. It is asserted that the Prussians have not injured the Chateau de Chambord.

The Germans at Tours.

It is reported the Prussians have bombarded Blois and now occupy one of the Fauborgs of Tours. Gambetta was there when the Prussians demanded its surrender. He ordered the defence of the city and had the bridge over the Loire blown up. This defence was needed to secure the safety of the force under Gen. Chausey, which moved toward the west, where it will be heavily reinforced and resume the offensive. Gambetta repeats his statement that Bourbaki's forces are in good condition.

The reports that the Prussians are at Tours is contradicted.

A dispatch from Alencon says the Prussians retreated from Verneuil.

The presence of Generals Sheridan and Burnside, at Constantinople, is commented on in diplomatic circles here.

Affairs at Havre.

LONDON, Dec. 14.

A dispatch from Havre reports that city and Harfleur quiet. A force of 30,000 men have been thrown out to confront the Germans. Havre is filled with war materials.

There are a number of gunboats in the Seine.

From Harfleur it is reported that no Prussians have been discovered by French scouts.

The American steamship Erie, from N. York, laden with American arms for the French, is off Cowes, where she will be convoyed by a French man-of-war to a French port.

The American ambulance at Paris is extolled as a model of efficiency and curative success.

PESTH, Dec. 13.

At the setting of the Hungarian delegation to-day, M. Bindik referred to a question that the Austria-Hungarian army consists of 864,869 regulars and 187,527 landwher. There has been an increase of 378,000 guns since 1867. The regulars possess 899,279 breech-loaders, and the landwher 147,227 muzzle loaders, of which 15,000 more are required for their armament.

Movements of the German Forces.

A special to the World dated London 14, says the Germans are near Tours, and offer battle on both sides of the river. Gen. Faidherbe with the Twenty-second corps having recaptured Tafere, Ham and St. Quentin, is moving on Laon.

Manteuffel has abandoned the attack on Havre and is moving south to aid Prince Frederick Charles.

A sortie from Paris is hourly expected. The French losses in the last sortie, according to the official reports, were 1,009 killed and 5,022 wounded.

LONDON, Dec. 14.

Anxiety about the result of the Luxemburg affairs causes much depression in business.

The new German loan is already quoted at a premium.

Occupation of Blois.

5 p. m.—The Prussians have certainly occupied Blois.

Prisoners taken at Phalsburg.

The official report of the surrender of Phalsburg states that 52 officers, 1,839 men and 74 guns were captured with the fortress.

Surrender of Montmedy.

Montmedy has also surrendered to the Germans. The besesgers did not bombard the town as was reported. They battered the walls with solid shot and as soon as they had effected a breach the place was captured.

Rumored Sortie.

BORDEAUX, Dec. 14.

Rumors are circulating here that a sortie of greater proportions than the last has been made from Paris, and has met with unexpected success.

The following official dispatch has been received by the Government:

HAVRE, Dec. 14.

The Prussian force which was preparing to attack this city are hurriedly retreating.

In General.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.

A Tribune Washington correspondent telegraphs that there is a good deal of talk in regard to the possibility of Col. Forney's succeeding Creswell as Postmaster-General, and the latter being sent as Minister to Russia in place of Curtin, of Pennsylvania, or to Prussia in place of Bancroft.

The withdrawal of Senator Cottrell, of New Jersey, from the canvass for United States Senator, gives rise to what appears to be a not unfounded rumor that Secretary Robeson will enter the field as a candidate for the Senate; and that he will be backed not only by his personal friends but by the supporters of Cottrell. He will retire from the Cabinet, which will give the President another opportunity of granting the demands of Pennsylvania. In this connection Forney is mentioned as Secretary of the Navy, and also Judge Scofield, of Pennsylvania, who is the present Chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs.

It is understood that Attorney General Ackerman will be a candidate for the Senate in the Georgia Legislature. The vacant position in the Cabinet, in case Ackerman resigns, it is said on authority, will be tendered to Senator Williams, whose term expires on March 4th. His appointment will be satisfactory to the Republicans of California and Oregon by whom he is considered the stronger man on the Pacific coast, and who claim that the appointment will result in giving the next Oregon Legislature to the Republicans and in returning Senator Williams to his place in the Senate in 1872 in place of Corbett.

Among other strange rumors circulating is that Secretary Boutwell will soon retire from the Treasury Department and Delano will succeed him, but these reports have been afloat so long with so meager prospects of fulfilment that the public will justly hesitate to credit them

General Schenck's nomination as Minister to England will not be sent to the Senate until after the holidays recess. The delay is understood to be at his own request.

Several Washington correspondents refer to the rumored retirement of Boutwell from the Cabinet. The World was telegraphed at a late hour last night the rumor of Secretary Boutwell's contemplated resignation has become very general and is fully received by Republican Senators and members who have taken pains to investigate. They state that the new programme for the Cabinet is the transfer of Delano from the Interior Department to the Treasury Department and the appointment of Judge Agnew as Secretary of the Interior.

This morning an eight story building in Thirty-fifth street fell, crushing two small brick houses with its inmates, killing four persons, two of whom are still in the ruins. The names of the killed are, Robert J. McCafferty, aged four years; Mary Reilly, Mrs. Hamilton, and Donnelly, engineer. Several others were slightly injured. The building was owned by J. P. Hill. The walls were eight inches thick at the bottom. The building was intended for a piano manufactory.

Jerry Dunn, found guilty of manslaughter in the third degree, for killing James Logan No. 2, was sentenced to Sing Sing to-day for four years.

Letter from Paris.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.

A private letter from France, dated Nov. 22d, contains the following paragraph, which shows the condition of military affairs in that vicinity as well as the spirit of the people. It will be observed that while he is full of devotion he admits the little hope remaining to the French. He say: "I hope to be called for military services, as I have been told I am designated for one of our armies. We are waiting every day the announcement of some great battle on which depends our destinies. The preliminary engagements are in our favor, but this is not the great play. Our army of the Loire is not our last army, not our last resource. We have many people armed and ready, but they are merely crowds, not organized strength; but if we can catch the enemy around Paris for two or three days, France will rise again and be stronger than before. For the present the heaviest anxiety presses our hearts. I will do my duty to the end. If France is defeated I wish to die in some struggle. If I remain alive I will do my best to restore her. If this is forbidden me I intend to go to America.

The Nilsson Concert.

The sale of season tickets of the Nilsson concert commenced at the Opera House this morning, and before it closed every ticket was sold. The line to the box-office commenced forming at 11 o'clock last night, and was headed by a sable son of toil, some shrewd lads following in his wake, and the party made themselves as comfortable as circumstances would permit, until this morning, when they sold their places for, in some instances, as high as five dollars. The sale of tickets for single concerts will take place to-morrow.

CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.

Ramsey presented a memorial of manufacturers of letter envelopes, printers and stationers protesting against the practice of the Government in the purchase and sale of stamps.

Morton, from the Military Committee, reported the joint resolutions to aid certain colleges and universities, allowing a detail of supernumerary army officers for professorships, with an amendment restricting the provisions to those officers exclusively.

Sherman Inquired whether the bill would still leave these officers subject to be transferred by the War Department, and was answered affirmatively. The bill was passed.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Revels, to aid in the repair and construction of levees in the State of Mississippi.

Buckingham, from the Committee on Commerce, reported, with amendment offered by Cameron, the bill to incorporate the Southern Express Company.

Morton, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported favorably on the bill to refund to States interest on money borrowed to equip, pay and transport troops for the U. S. service during the late war.

Wilson, from the Committee on Military affairs, reported an original bill which was at once taken up and passed. It amended the 12th section of the act for the reduction of the army, by substituting the words "first day of July, 1871," for the words "first day of January," wherever they occurred in said section, so as to extend the time for mustering out supernumerary officers.

Ramsay introduced a bill to regulate international correspondence of telegraphic lines between the United States and foreign countries. Referred.

Buckingham introduced a bill providing that hereafter no tax shall hereafter be imposed or collected upon any unearned premiums or distributable sums added to the contingent funds of any insurance companies. Referred.

Chandler, from the Committee on Commerce, reported favorably with merely a verbal amendment, the bill introduced by him recently authorizing the President at his discretion to suspend, by proclamation, the privilege of bonded transportation of foreign merchandise conveyed to Canada, and Mexico, and also the privilege of navigating waters of the United States accorded to Canadian vessel.

Chandler, from the same committee, reported adversely the House bill constituting Jersey City a port of entry. Indefinitely postponed

At 1:10 o'clock the Senate, on motion of Schurz, took up the resolution offered yesterday by that Senator, declaring in favor of removal of all political disqualifications as soon as the imperative public necessity which dictated their imposition had ceased. Schurz then, delivered an address of very unusual length, to which the Senate listened with marked attention. He reviewed the history of the party division in Missouri, for which he said he and those who acted with him had been denounced as traitors to the Republican cause, interference, at the solicitation of his colleague (Drake) to the national existence, by which the State contest had acquired more than local interest and the subsequent defeat of the President with all his patronage by the triumph of the very principles upon which he had been elected. The probabilities of the formation of a new party nucleus and prospects of reform in the civil service and revenue were also referred to, commencing with an allusion to the resolutions as an expression of the sentiment which had received an emphatic endorsement at the recent election in Missouri, and the existing agreement between his colleague (Drake) and himself, that his own speech should be made before the withdrawal of the latter from the Senate. Schurz proceeded to show that disfranchisement of persons engaged in the rebellion was a temporary expedient, a measure safely rendered necessary by the new social condition in the South consequent on the close of the war. He held that removal by the party which imposed them, and while still in its ascendency in the Government, of all political disqualifications, especially from the ballot box, was essential to the restoration of fraternal feeling as proving that such measures had not resulted from vindictiveness, but necessity, and as bringing the late rebels to a full realization of their shares, with ourselves in the institutions and greatness of the common country. Such was among the reasons for governing his course in the late movements, quoting from the resolutions offered by himself in the National Republican Convention of 1868, declaring the republican party in favor of the removal of political disabilities as soon as compatible with public safety, and of welcoming back to the Union loyal people among the late rebels who would accept the new order of things. He said this was part of the platform on which Gen. Grant was made President, but how had that promise been carried out? In Missouri only by victory over the Republican party, instead of good faith and by its assistance. When, therefore, the party had resisted the enfranchisement, after the party's honor commanded them to grant it, what hope could the Republicans have of winning over to their ranks the re-enfranchized. The principles of the opponents of the movement within the Republican ranks, were those whose whole political stock in trade consisted of the battle crisis of the "civil war," who would forever roll the word "rebel" as a sweet morsel under their tongues, and that class of politicians whose whole political life was to monopolize local offices. Schurz denied, as not in accordance with fact, the assertion of his colleague in the printed speech circulated in the Senate, that the opposition was not so much to enfranchizement itself as against the constitutional amendment as a method of effecting it. He referred to some fifty or sixty newspapers, which, led by their central organ, St. Louis, directly protested against the thing itself. In order to prevent the enfranchising amendment to the Constitution, the Republican State Convention was manipulated in advance by giving to the colored voters of the State representation double that allowed to the white population, and so disciplining them that that race, against whom so many prejudices were still alive, should in Missouri cast their virgin franchise to continue the disfranchisement of others. The speaker was unsuccessful in his efforts in the Convention in behalf of the enfranchising amendment, until he and his friends went out from the Convention, carrying it with them, as claimed. The honor, principle and banner of the Republican party were successively referred to, as also the sweeping character of political disqualification in Missouri, where, by provisions of the statute and Constitution, persons could be disfranchised not only for disloyal acts, but for sympathy expressed or implied even of the remotest kind. consistent Union men of life-long devotion to the Government for merely expressing the hope that their relatives in the rebel army would return home safely, were disfranchised for sympathy with the rebellion. He (Schurz) knew scores of men who had served three and four years in the Union army, who had been disfranchised for harmless language uttered either before they donned the blue and since the war. The atrocity and abuses which had developed themselves under the system of disfranchisement was shown by the speaker at some length in absolutely irresistible powers, registration offences, the rights of any citizen to vote being completely at the mercy of any villian who happened to be a registration officer, while there was no remedy for the grossest outrages. The fact, too, was public that in many counties these officers acted wholly in the interest of Radical candidates, the only consideration being as to the number of opposition votes to be stricken off to secure a majority. In one case as many as 500 voters were disfranchised upon secret affidavits. The Senator from New York, (Conkling) at the last session, had denounced the election frauds in New York city, but that Senator would agree that the abomination was as great in stealing legal votes out of the ballot box under cover of the law, as in Missouri, as stuffing illegal votes into the ballot box as in New York and Philadelphia. In this connection he characterized as unqualifiedly false, the newspaper report that the Missouri bolt had anything to do with a revenue reform conspiring or originating in Washington. Personally, his convictions led him to oppose the protective system. Had the tariff question been the issue in Missouri, he thought the majority against the question would have been nearer one hundred thousand than forty-two thousand. The question was discussed but not the overwhelming issue. He denied that the allegation might have been settled by reference of it to the legislature of 1870. Besides such a course would have involved the defeat of the constitutional amendment, then before the people, and while failing to preserve party unity would have transferred the struggle to the legislative districts. He then read from the speech delivered by his colleague (Drake) at a serenade, comments upon whose remarks were attributed to himself, that he looked forward to he time when new party ties would be founded. The conclusion of his colleague was that he (Schurz) designed taking the whole German element over to the Democratic party to control the next Presidential election, and would then be the great power behind the Democratic throne. This Schurz ridiculed as a morbid hallucination, as also his colleague's onslaught upon the Germans, but he regretted that while his colleague's insinuations had had no effect upon the people of Missouri they seemed to have had a strong influence upon the mind of the President. He was convinced that the letter of the President to the Collector of Internal Revenue at St. Louis condemnatory of the movement, and the suspension of a number of Federal officers, mostly Germans, was instigated by his colleague. While interference by the President in State elections by means of patronage had long been considered a matter of most questionable propriety and bad policy under any circumstances. He then criticized the alleged misrepresentations of his colleagues to the President, that the movement was designed as war upon the administration. Were he an enemy of the administration he would not deplore the fact that the President lent an ear to such insinuations. To refute the charges against himself by the factions of the opposition, he referred to his speeches in former years to show that he had uniformly held that General Grant in the presidential chair would have the most inviting opportunity to restore the long lost cordiality of sentiment among the American people and bring on a new era of good feeling, that he would have more facilities than any preceding administration to effect thorough reform in the civil service, and the purification of the whole political machinery of the administration, and he still gave his cordial support in the direction thus indicated. His friends in their movement, had expected the President's sympathy, and the appearance of the St. Louis letter was to them a painful surprise. In these great words, "Let us have peace," Grant had stood before the country, not as the creator of politicians, but as the very exponent of a moderate and conciliatory policy. If, finally, the Missouri election became the defeat of the administration, Grant must look to himself and his advisors for the responsibility. The President's principles achieved victory over his patronage, and had he only maintained a friendly neutrality the success of the B. Gratz Brown movement would have passed for a triumph of the President's principles, gaining him thousands of friends where now he has lost thousands. It may not be a fault but an advantage to the President. He had no opportunities for acquiring an extensive political experience, but the advisers who pretended to be his friends ought to have foretold the result of his interferance and his following the example of Presidents Pierce, Buchanan and Johnson.

Schurz referred to the President's avowal in favor of civil service reform. The attempt at civil service reform in Missouri was in true Andrew Johnson style to organize a bread and butter brigade, and if this was a fair indication of the President's meaning of reform, not much value was to be placed in the President's promises. He had shown the result of the President's following the advice of political managers. Lord save the administration and party, if the same spirit henceforward govern their course. After asserting his allegiance to be due to Republican principles rather than to party discipline, he concluded with some speculations upon the probable formation of a new party. Popular belief in Missouri was that the Republican party was ended, and he remarked the recent Democratic changes in position demonstrated a new phase of development was upon us. The exhaustion of old issues and growing dissatisfaction and insubordination within great parties, were confirmatory evidences, while on the other hand, the questions of revenue reform, civil service, reform, etc., were yet ephemerial issues. Upon the whole, while the prospects of a new party might at present appear to be obscure, yet it would come with the necessity of a national crisis.

Schurz closed with expressions of his confidence in the ability of the Republican party to become that new party, claiming for it the possession of the elements of healthy regeneration.

Drake rose to reply, but yielding to the general disposition to adjourn, confined himself to a demand upon his colleague for proof of his assertion in the speech just made that he (Drake), many years before, had objected to the election of Hon. Jas. S. Rollins, his personal friend, as Governor of Missouri because he might prove hostile to the institution of slavery in that State.

Carl Schurz replied that his information was based upon a letter received by him from Mr. Rollins himself.

Drake replied he could recollect nothing of the kind, but, admitting the statement, he had only to say the cause must be desperate indeed which depended for its vindication upon a remark made thirteen years ago. He gave notice he would to-morrow reply at length to his colleague's speech.

At 5:45 p. m. the Senate adjourned.

House.

Several bills were introduced and appropriately referred, after which the House resumed the consideration of the amnesty bill.

Barry argued against the exceptions contained in the bill and in favor of general and unconditional amnesty.

Morgan argued that Congress ought to pass an general amnesty bill without any exceptions and let the country have peace.

Farnsworth stated to the House that the bill reported was not an unanimous report of the Committee on Reconstruction nor did it even have the approval of the majority of the Committee. It was only permitted to be reported to the House.

He declared that the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution which imposed political disabilities was only intended to remain so long as reconstruction was incomplete and until the rights of all persons were secured. The colored people in the south asked for it. Having obtained their own rights, they were liberal and more just than some members of Congress, and were asking Congress to relieve their white brethren from disabilities imposed on them. The Republican party outside of Congress are in favor of universal amnesty. He did not see any practicable or just way of making exceptions by classes. General Longstreet, who held a high position, as by appointment of the President, would come under this exception of the bill. Parties to be excepted should be mentioned by name and not grouped in classes. The bill was a very singular mixture. It contained some matter which might become a law if adopted by a majority vote, and contained other matter which could not become a law unless adopted by a two-third vote. It would be merely a bill to settle legal questions only, and should have come from the Judiciary Committee. He declared himself very positive that there was something behind the bill, something covered up in a meal tub. While the people all over the country were looking for an act of amnesty they were looking for bread, and Congress offered them a stone. Instead of being a bill to quiet suits in the south, it was a bill to foster and revive suits that were now dead. Who, he asked, was afraid Jeff Davis would come to Congress? The exclusion of men by classes would exclude the best brains and best hearts in the South. A little generosity expressed in proper time made friends and not enemies.

The debate here closed for to-day and to-morrow, being private bill day, and the House agreeing not to hold a session Saturday, the bill went over till Tuesday next.

Mr. Kelly, of New York, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the pension bill appropriating thirty million dollars, the same as last year, is made the special order for Monday next.

Mr. Hooper, from Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill to amend section 21 of the Internal Revenue bill, relating to duties on sugar. He said the bill made a change in the rates of duty, but that its object was to simplify the law so it can be instinctively understood, there being a difficulty now as to the construction of the law he said he would call up to-morrow. The bill which comes up for consideration to-morrow strikes out from the provisions of the present law the words "Raw" and "Muscovado" wherever they occur, so far as grades are below thirteen, Dutch standard. The effect of this will be that all sugar will now be classified by colors alone.

Mr. Garfield offered a resolution calling for information as to the amount required to pay additional compensations to census takers authorized by the act of June 19, 1870. Adopted.

Kelley, of Pennsylvania, presented a memorial from the American Medical Association on the cultivation of chinchana free in the United States.

The House then at half-past four adjourned until to-morrow.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.

Secretary Robeson to-day received a telegram announcing the death at Cooperstown, N. Y., yesterday, of Rev. Charles Samuel Stewart, senior chaplain of the U. S. navy.

It is positively said at the Executive Mansion that there is no truth whatever in the rumors of Secretary Boutwell's resignation, and it is also asserted that his relations with the President are as heretofore of a friendly character, both in personal and official relations.

Confirmations.

The Senate extra session to-day confirmed the following nominations: W. Page, Virginia, to be Consulate of Porte, Said, Spencer M. Assenefelter, to be United States Attorney for New Mexico; Thomas M. Harris, of Pennsylvania, Pension Agent, Wheeling, West Virginia.

For Postmasters: J. M. Billings, Santa Claira, California; George Rowland, Sacramento, California; D. McDonald, Princeton, Illinois; Jas. A. Hudson, Saginaw, Michigan; F. J. Sherring, Marengo, Iowa; Jno. H. Stewart, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Levi Weirick, Tiffin, Ohio; R. H. Bollinger, Verden, Illinois; Jas. G. Bidman, Canton, Illinois; Miss Mary T. Russell, Hillsdale, Michigan; Milo D. Hamilton, Monroe, Michigan; J. Kenzlar, Connorsville, Ind.; Wm. A. Baugh, Berlin, Wisconsin; Lewis T. Ashbury, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin; L. P. Hotchkiss, West Eauclaire, Wisconsin; L. A. Baker, Wellington, Illinois; Samuel E. Wallerton, Winona, Illinois; J. M. Sheets, Paris, Illinois; Jas. L. Comp, Dixon, Illinois.

Hiram E. Kelley, to be Collector of the Sixth District of Wisconsin.

Geo. E. E. Hussie, Collector of Customs at Vicksburg, Mississippi.

A large number of promotions to cadetships were also confirmed.

Resigned.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 15.

Dr. James Scott, of Ohio, has tendered his resignation as Secretary of Washington Territory.

Revenue Frauds.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has authorized Supervisor Cowan to investigate the settlements of fraudulent income returns made the past year through the instrumentality of Assistant Assessor Lackman, Assessor Storms, the District Attorney and the Courts. The Department denies that authority has been given to adjust the claims in the manner charged by newspapers.

Settled.

The Schwab bankruptcy case was settled to-day by payment of the claim in question.

Irregularities.

A number of discrepencies have been discovered of late in the account here of the late General McGroorty, formerly Collector of the Second Ohio District. They involve several thousand dollars, that appear from time to time to have been collected without being fully accunted for. There seems to have been much looseness in the management of his business in the signing of receipts, it is charged, having been done by several persons who were not held by him to rigid accountability.

Railroad Matters.

The stockholders of the Cincinnati and Indiana Railroad held a meeting this forenoon and adjourned to the 19th of January without electing directors. The stockholders of the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette Railroad held an adjourned meeting at Morris to-day and on recommendation of a joint committee of the stockholders and directors, recently appointed to inquire into the affairs and devise means to liquidate the floating indebtedness. Adjourned until the 20th of January. There appears to be a strong desire among the friends of the road to get matters again in a satisfactory shape.

Killed.

A small boy named Nesslan was run over by a street car to-day and killed.

Suit Dismissed.

Smith N. Powers' suit for $40,000 damage against General Young, late Supervisor of Internal Revenue, arising from seizure of spirits belonging to the former, was dismissed to-day.

Indian Affairs.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 15.

The Republican has a dispatch from Ocemulgee, Indian Territory, dated 11th inst., stating the Indian Council was fully organized, with Superintendent Hoag President. Fifty-four delegates were present, representing fourteen tribes, including all civilized tribes. The most important subject is that for organizing a Territorial Government embracing all tribes. Yesterday Mr. Campbell left Ore the Chippewa Nation, from a special committee, and reported in favor of a plan of organization, Republican in form. It provides for executive, legislative and judicial departments, the government to be based upon, and strictly in conformity with the treaty of 1866. The plan contemplates protection of the weaker against the oppression from stronger tribes, and is not to be binding upon any until their consent is obtained. After the reception of the report the Council adjourned till Monday to give time for deliberation on so important a measure. There is considerable caucussing over the matter. Everything thus far has been conducted with decency and order. W. P. Rap, the trading Cherokee, in an interview with a Commissioner, expressed favor for confederation without Congressional interference. Superintendent Hoag has just returned from an extended tour among the Cheyennes, Arapahas, Kiowas and Comanches. Satanta, the noted Kiowa chief, wanted ammunition, complained that the Texans came up and shot his people and wished Camp Supply removed so that he could hunt on the north fork of the Canadian River. Favorable reports are given of some, while other tribes of New Mexico were on the head-waters of Brazos River, and it was feared they would come down on the Kiowa and Comanche reservation and stir up trouble among these tribes

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, Dec. 15.

The Republican State Central Committee last night adopted a resolution praying Congress to pass a general amnesty bill, by only two dissenting votes.

The question of the State debt was before the Senate this forenoon. The tenor of the speeches was in favor of carrying the matter of the West Virginia State debt before the United States Supreme Court and if payment was not compelled there, then Virginia would settle the whole debt. All opposed any idea of repudiation.

Insurance Case Decided.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 15.

In the case of Binhams, assignee, against the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. of New Jersey, in the U. S. District Court, the jury found for plaintiff the amount of the policy, and interest. Binham is alleged to have committed suicide two years ago.

Impeachment.

RALEIGH, Dec. 15.

The House to-day sent a committee of three to the bar of the Senate impeaching Governor Holden and demanding that they take action in the matter. On informing the Senate that articles of impeachment would be soon produced, the Senate replied that it would consider the matter and take action thereon.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD,
TITUSVILLE, December 15, 1870—9 P. M.

The petroleum market was considerable stronger to-day, and considerable activity was observable both in spot and futures. Buyers were offering from five to ten cents above their bids of the day previous, and holders of oil are asking from ten to fifteen cents above the best bids made. By their actions a large number of producers and holders of oil show that they anticipate a still better price for the product, and much oil is still kept in reserve. Buyers, on the contrary, hold the opinion that the present prices are the best of the month, and predict a decline after the settlements for the year have been effected. Outside markets are quoted firmer with but little activity.

Money and Stock Market.

By Telegraph.] NEW YORK, Dec. 15.

Gold opened strong at 111¼, and up to 12 o'clock remained so, when it gradually declined and closed at 110¾@110¾.

A few loans were made at from 2 to 6 per cent for carrying.

Clearances $50,000,000.

Government securities opened dull and steady and remained so until the proposals for the bonds to be sold were made public, when the 5-20's of '65 '67 and '68 declined ¼ per cent, closing steady.

Money very active; the opening rate was 6@7 per cent, and noon 7 currency to 7 gold, and late in the day as high as ⅛ of 1 per cent per day was paid. The impression is that it will be easier to-morrow.

There has been considerable excitement in the stock market. The stringency in money has had the usual effect, which has been a pressure to sell. Prices are lower all round. The decline is from ¾ to 1¾c, most marked in St Paul and Pacific Mail.

Tennesse bonds have been strong to-day. Other state securities dull and neglected.

LOCAL NOTICES.

NOTICE TO THE GROCERY MERCHANTS OF TITUSVILLE AND VICINITY.—Gentlemen: We wish to inform you that we have now on hand a full and complete stock of everything we have usually kept. We did contemplate a change of business, going more exclusively into flour, provisions and produce, but at the earnest request of many of our best merchants, we concluded to keep our usual variety of goods, and it is needless to say, for all good merchants know that we carry a larger stock, keep a better class of goods, sell them at closer figures than any competing house. We keep no liquors, therefore we have a larger capital to invest exclusively in groceries and provisions. We sell to dealers only, being the only strictly wholesale house in the city. Our sales for the past year reached the large sum of $625,000. Of course we have added largely to our cash capital, so much so that we are now enabled to buy most of our goods for cash, therefore we are a hard house to beat on prices. MCEOWEN & CO.

NOTICE to all who pay $400 a year rent. —You can buy a lot four squares from the Postoffice for $400, build a house for $1,000, and save rent. Apply to J. R. Barber, City Collector's office, or on J. N. Pew, Real Estate Agent, Odd Fellows' Block, Titusville, Pa.

J. N. PEW, Real Estate Agent, is selling lots on the new street opened by Messrs. Barber & Bates. If you want to buy a small lot, build a neat house, and save rent, call on J. R. Barber, City Collector's office, or on J. N. Pew, Odd Fellows Block.

THAT RIFLE.—The rifle with which Kightlinger was shot by Turner, in "the late unpleasantness" at Hydetown, is on exhibition at Hœnig's.

THE Catholic Fair has been in session for two days and will continue till Christmas. As usual, it attracts a large crowd of visitors day and evening.

THE sale of tickets for the second night at the Opera House, ("Lancashire Lass") commenced yesterday. About two-thirds of the seats were disposed of.

PERSONAL.—Messrs. John Fertig and W. B. Sterrett, of Titusville, are named in the Board of Directors of the new Fire Insurance Company of Erie.

THE oil region is likely to be written up this season. Various magazine correspondents and artists are filling up their portfolios with "crude" materials.

THE first genuine cold snap of the season came yesterday. Should it continue forty-eight hours the new skating park at the foot of Water Street will be in prime condition.

"HOME RELIEF."—Messrs. J. H. Broas & Son have tendered the use of their new hall whenever disengaged, to the committees on charades and tableaux for private rehearsals.

PROF. BALLOU'S juvenile class will meet at 3 p. m. instead of 2 p. m. The adult class will meet from 8 to 11 p. m. All the classes for Monday, Dec. 19th, will be abandoned for that day, on account of the Opera House opening.

CORRECTION.—There was a typographical error in our description in yesterday's HERALD of the new Parshall Opera House. The name of the architectural decorator, and scenographer, was spelled Berea. It should have read Berra—Romeo Berra.

HIS HONOR, Mayor Bates, has been invited to make a few introductory remarks on the occasion of the opening of the new Parshall Opera House on Monday evening next. Mr. Bates will fitly discharge this pleasing duty, as the official representative of the city.

THE lad who was bitten by a dog on Tuesday evening last, was visited by the wife of Mr. Frank, the owner of the animal, on Wednesday, and presented with $3.50. The sum is not large, but as expressive of the donor's sympathy for the unfortunate lad, was very acceptable.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—Nelson Coombs to A. R. Dodsworth, two lots on Bank street. Consideration, $1,500.

Same to Julius Byles, two lots on George and Superior streets. Consideration $1,500.

Same to Frederick Schultz, one house and lot on Bank street. Consideration, $1,600.

TWENTY TONS OF MUD.—Street Commissioner Ostrom, yesterday removed a large superincumbent mass of frozen mud from the iron bridge at the foot of Franklin street. The weight of the material was estimated at about twenty tons. The planks are now perfectly clean and if the frost continues will probably remain so for some time.

A POOR, hard-working servant girl was unfortunate enough to lose her pocketbook last Tuesday, containing all her worldly fortune, the small accumulation of years. If any one finds it, we are sure they will do a deed of heavenly kindness by returning it to her and thus gladden her heart, now sorely oppressed with her ill fortune. See advertisement.

THE editor of the Erie Gazette recently visited Titusville, and congratulates his readers that we have more mud," deeper mud, and stickier mud than ever Erie had. If he will repeat his visit a year from date, we hope to satisfy him that we have more pavement, better pavement, and cleaner pavement than any other town in the oil country.

AMATEUR ENTERTAINMENT AT SHAMBURG.—An amateur dramatic entertainment will take place this Friday evening, at Good Templar Hall in Shamburg, in which will be presented, "THE QUIET FAMILY," and "Slasher and Crasher." The cast of characters gives promise that it will be a very successful and delightful affair. See advertisement.

"HONOR TO WHOM HONOR," ETC.—In our article on the Parshall Opera House yesterday, due credit was not given to Mr. Zimmerman, the Superintendent of the work. We are informed that he personally supervised the entire structure, from the foundations up. Mr. Zimmerman also superintended the construction of the Meadville Opera House.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Joseph Densmore yesterday afternoon, hitched a pair of saddle horses to some awning posts on Diamond street, fronting Maginns' liquor store. The animals became restive and one of them broke loose, dragging the post with him, and partially wrecking the awning. Officer Miller, however, seized the brute in time to prevent further damage.

COUNTER SUIT.—As the result of the arrest of Frank Brown, and the issue of a warrant for the arrest of George Turner, it is said that John Kightlinger, (uncle of Rowland Kightlinger, deceased) will be arrested on a charge of perjury, as well as of assault with intent to kill. It is charged that John Kightlinger instigated the assault upon George Turner and Frank Brown, at the time of the shooting, and subsequently perjured himself at the coroner's inquest.

THE OIL MARKET.—By reference to our market column it will be seen that the price of petroleum has appreciated during the past few days, from twenty to twenty-five cents in various localities, and the indications are that the close of the present month will witness a still further advance in prices, though the opinion prevails that after the close of oil contracts for 1870, lower prices and a dull market must follow. "Futures" are in fair demand, though principally for the first quarter of next year, and the prices bid are from five to ten cents below the present prices of "spot."

The Kightlinger Homicide.

The Kightlinger case kept the city yesterday in a lively ferment. Justice Strouse procured the use of a large room on the second floor of a building on Diamond street, in which to hold the examination. Frank Brown, who was arrested as an accessory, was on hand, together with the witnesses from Hydetown, but George Turner, who is accused of the murder, did not put in an appearance. A. B. Richmond, Esq, telegraphed that George Turner had started from Franklin for Titusville on Wednesday last. Some of his friends here entertain fears that he has been waylaid on the road; this, however, we can hardly credit under the circumstances. By others it is supposed, that being short of funds, he is footing it to Titusville, and may come to hand at any moment. A preliminary examination of Frank Brown was held by Esq. Strouse, yesterday afternoon, F. B. Guthrie appearing as attorney for the Commonwealth, and Messrs. Barry and Johns for the defence. Owing to the latter gentleman not having time to attend to the case, it was postponed until nine o'clock this morning. The following witnesses for the commonwealth were held to appear in the sum of $100 each: Robert Davidson, J. A. Reed, Deforest Ross, Benjamin Ross, James Arters, Patrick Griffin, Miles Griffin, Wm. Wilkinson, John Kightlinger, John Turner, Matt. Reddy, David Baugher, William H. Marsh and James Marsh. Frank Brown was placed in charge of officer Miller.

Below we present a communication from Frank Brown, giving his version of the transaction:

STATEMENT OF FRANCIS BROWN.

Editors Morning Herald:—Having been arrested upon a warrant issued at the instance of Abram Kightlinger (father of Rowland Kightlinger, deceased) upon a warrant charging me with "abetting and assisting George Turner in shooting Rowland Kightlinger," I purpose to give your readers a full and unprejudiced statement of the affair, so far as my personal knowledge of it is concerned.

On the morning of Saturday, December 3d, I started for Titusville with a load of wood. On reaching Ridgeway's tavern, I stopped a few moments, and found there Wm. Turner and his nephew, George Turner, bargaining with John Gelsinger, the bartender, for a rifle. The rifle was not loaded—at least Gelsinger said it was not—and the trade was effected by Wm. Turner giving a watch in exchange for it. William and George Turner then rode with me to Bucklin's tavern, where we took a drink apiece and left the rifle "up the spout." We then came on to Brawley's tavern, where we stopped and I sold my wood. John and Rowland Kightlinger were in the bar room, and Rowland Kightlinger and George Turner seemed to exchange the time of day. No difficulty occurred between them. After unloading the wood, I drove into Titusville, hitched my team at the wood-yard on Martin street, and went about other business The Turners also went about private business.

About 3 o'clock p. m., I started for home. I met Dr. Gage near Brawley's and persuaded him to ride home with me, as I wanted medicine for my family. We drove on to Bucklin's tavern, and there stopped for a few moments. While there, the Turners came along with Riley Fisher's team which young Wm. Turner was driving. Wm. Turner, senior, and George were also in the wagon. George Turner asked if he could ride with me, as he wanted to go to Green's, which is adjoining my farm. I consented, and he got into the wagon and we drove along. Shortly afterwards the Kightlingers overtook us, with their own team, and requested me to stop. After stopping, I looked around and saw Rowland Kightlinger clinched with George Turner, who was at the back end of my wagon. Rowland tore off George's coat, cap and vest, and left them lying in the road. We drove on and left the Kightlingers behind. Soon afterwards, George Turner said he would go back and see if he could find his clothes. He got out of the wagon and started into the woods, as I supposed to avoid the Kightlingers; I then drove on with Gage to Ridgeway's tavern, but before reaching there the Kightlingers passed me on the road. I found them at the tavern and left them there; I then went to Ewing's store and stopped there to get some resin; upon coming out I found that Gage had driven off my team; I started to look for the team and found William and George Turner riding in the Fisher wagon. I asked one of them to go with me, and George got out of the wagon. He then had the rifle in his hands, the first that I had seen of it since it was left at Bucklin's in the morning. We found my team at Sisk's tavern, where I bought a glass of whisky to apply to a cut on my horse's hoof. After getting into the wagon we drove on, and upon reaching the forks of the road leading to Powers' mill we saw a number of men and teams at the side of the road. One asked, "Is that you, Frank?" and I replied "Yes." I think it was Rowland Kightlinger's voice. He asked where George Turner was. I got out and replied that George was in the wagon. Rowland then came up and struck me twice severely in the face. I said: "This is not George." He then left me and started for the wagon. The next thing I heard was the report of the rifle. It was then between six and seven o'clock, and quite dark. As soon as the rifle was discharged, the horses started at a rapid pace. I ran after them, jumped into the wagon, and found that George had the lines. I asked him to let me drive. He refused and I think he said he "had shot Rowl." He rode with me perhaps a mile or more and then got out, and I have not seen him since.

This is a plain, matter of fact statement of the whole affair, so far as my connection with it is concerned.

Respectfully yours,
FRANCIS BROWN.

THIRD WARD RELIEF SOCIETY.—In compliance with a previous call, the ladies of the Third Ward met at the residence of Mrs. R. D. Fletcher, on Pine street, Wednesday, at 2 p. m. A Society was organized and the following officers elected:

President—Mrs. Chas. Kellogg.
Vice Presidents—Mrs. R. D. Fletcher, Mrs. B. Bosch and Mrs. H. M. Hall.
Treasurer—Miss Josephine Crocker.
Secretary—Mrs. J. J. Carter.

Any donations of clothing may be left with Mrs. Fletcher; contributions of money gratefully received.

The ladies of the Ward are earnestly requested to attend the regular meetings of this Society. The next meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 21st, at 1 o'clock, at Mrs. Carter's, corner Spring and Perry streets. Let there be a full attendance, as there is work for all.

From Oil City and Franklin.

Special Correspondence.

OIL CITY, December 14, 1870.

The ladies' dinner in aid of the Library fund, passed off very successfully, and there seems to be a general wish that it should be repeated at some future time for the same praiseworthy object. Your complimentary reference to the affair in this morning's HERALD, relieves your correspondent of that professional duty, but it is hoped that some member of the association will see fit to "write up" the claims of the organization to the general public support. If some of our worthy citizens would put their hands in their trousers pockets during the holiday season and make a substantial donation to the Library Association, they would confer a general benefit.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

The temperance cause has experienced a temporary revival from the recent Convention, but it was less generally attended than was expected. What we need in this region is a convention of the temperance men of the oil region. Nothing can be accomplished in a practical way unless general public sympathy is awakened. Every town in the oil region is cursed by the liquor traffic, and, in fact, the liquor interest seems to run our politics, dictate nominations and influence elections. If there was the same principle of co-operation among the friends of temperance as there is among their opponents, we should have a different state of things.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

The suggestion presented in my first letter concerning the incorporation of Oil City and Venango City in a single municipality is very generally approved. It is safe to predict that under such an arrangement, connecting the two sections with a horse railroad, keeping the price of building lots in Venango City within the reach of men of moderate means, we should greatly stimulate the development and prosperity of this community.

PROGRESS OF FRANKLIN.

The growth of Franklin has been greatly retarded by the "do-nothing" policy of former years, but she is now turning over a new leaf, and during the last season has made unmistakeable progress. Your correspondent ran down there the other day, and could have filled his note book with first-class city items. The is progressing rapidly, and there have been several applicants for the position of "mine host," but it will not be in readiness before the first of April. The estimated cost of the hotel, completely furnished, is $125,000. Franklin will rejoice at the consummation, for the transient public were seldom so illy provided for. Indeed, the proprietor of one house, I am told, is himself boarding at the county's expense for a short term, in consequence of a remark Judge Trunkey let fall concerning the violation of the license law; and an accident of the same description happened to a bartender in the same establishment.

GAS WORKS.

The gas works are completed and on Tuesday evening the streets of Franklin were lighted for the first time. Forty public lamps are provided. The charge for gas, to the corporation is $3, and to private consumers, $3.50 per thousand. This I understand is 50 cents less than you pay in Titusville, but you needn't "take airs" on that account.

NICHOLSON PAVEMENT.

The City Council of Franklin are also moving in the matter of street improvements, and if Titusville does not look to her laurels, the "Nursery" will tally one ahead. Mayor Hoover is entitled to great personal credit for the energy with which he has prosecuted public improvements. His administration was the first to break down the barriers of old fogyism and inaugurate a new dispensation. His re-election last fall was an emphatic endorsement of his course; for although a Democrat, many Republicans gave him a cordial support in consequence of his progressive policy in the matter of local improvements.

LUBRICATING OIL.

The new well on the Patchell Run is doing about 150 barrels per day. It is owned by Goss & Gould, of Pleasantville, and others. The oil is of the best lubricating quality, and worth about $4 delivered. There are about 200 barrels of lubricating produced daily, besides the above, on Egbert & Blakely, and Mackey, Epley & Co.'s tracts. Last year at this time the production did not exceed 25 barrels daily, and the oil was then worth $12 per barrel. One thing is very certain; this oil has only to be generally introduced to supercede all other lubricating oils, and then will have a proportionate demand in the market.

THE MASQUERADE.

The bal masque for the benefit of the Franklin Fire Department, is worthy a passing notice. It was designed as a reputable affair, and in the early part of the evening there was a fair attendance of ladies. I would not venture to assert that the creme de la creme of Franklin society were there, but sparkling eyes flashed amid the gay revelry, and sweet lips smiled, while lithe and graceful forms moved with fairy tread beneath the glare of brilliant lights, redolent with joy and youth and rich toilets and Alaska diamonds flashed back the dazzling rays. But a change came over the enchanting scene. Somebody told somebody that a special train was on the road with a delegation of "the fancy" from Petroleum Centre, Red Hot and Oil City! At once all was confusion. The masks and dominoes "lit out;" everybody forsook the enchanting scene, and took an air line route for her domicil; the gents were left alone in their glory, and notwithstanding the contradiction of the report, it was impossible to counteract its effect. As a result the boys organized a "stag" dance, and a scene of boisterous revelry ensued which was continued till a late, or rather early hour, in the morning.

We do things better in Oil City, as we shall show you by and by.

FIGARO.

Another Montgomery.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1870.

Editors Morning Herald:

Dear Sirs—I have just read an account in your paper of the murder committed in this city by David Montgomery, and a statement that he formerly resided in Shamburg, and worked for Hooker & Cole. This I wish you would correct, as I am the person that formerly resided in Shamburg and worked for Hooker & Cole, but am not the murderer—he is confined in the jail at this place awaiting his trial. A correction of this statement will oblige yours, etc. DAVID S. MONTGOMERY.

—We hasten to correct this unfortunate mistake and to make the amende honorable. It seems that the Christian and surnames being the same led our informant into this error, which we are sure was quite unintentional on the part of our authority, who is "a Rochester boy." We believe the paragraph referred to bore testimony to the high character of the Shamburg Montgomery, and his Shamburg friends, who first heard the suspicion of crime imputed to him with surprise, will now learn of his perfect innocence with pleasure.

News and Gossip.

—The Buffalo Commercial states that a distinguished physician is to hold a post mortem examination on the Cardiff Giant, which now lies in state in that city.

—The supplement passed April 5, 1870, alters the game law so that deer hunting now ceases on the 20th of December of each year.

—Candidates for Governor are coming to the surface rapidly. On the Republican side Gen. John F. Hartranft, Hon. John B. Packer, Congressmen from the Fourteenth district, Senator Harry White, of Indiana, and others, are named. Hon. W. W. Ketchum, of Luzerne, will not, it is said, again be a candidate. On the Democratic side, Gen. Cass, Coffee-pot Wallace, and some others, aspire to the position.

—The State Legislature will convene on the first Tuesday of January.

—The champion old couple of Pennsylvania, if not of the United States, are living about nine miles southwest of Tionesta, Forest county, Mr. and Mrs. Allio, aged respectively 100 and 104 years. Each is the other's first companion. They are natives of France. Both are hale and hearty, and bid fair to be the "oldest couple" for several years to come.

—It is not difficult to believe the private advices from the Pennsylvania coal region that the companies and miners, are in collusion in the present strike to force the prices of coal up to a higher figure, or what is called the "paying point."

—"The Drummer Boy, or the Battle Field of Shiloh," is to be given at the Academy of Music, Corry, for one week, commencing Monday evening.

—John B. Gough is to lecture to the people of Meadville on the evening of the 23d.

—The new Senator to be elected on the 24th inst., in the place of Mr. Watt, fills an unexpired term and has no vote upon the election of United States Senator in 1873—Mr. Watt having before his decease filled one year of his three years' term.

MORRIS, TASKER & CO.—TITUSVILLE BRANCH.—We yesterday visited the new branch establishment of the celebrated Philadelphia firm, Morris, Tasker & Co., proprietors of the Pascal Iron Works of that city. The Titusville branch is located on Diamond street, (the store formerly occupied by E. K. Thompson,) extending through to Spring street. The second floor is divided into parlor, bed rooms, bath room, closets, etc., elegantly furnished, the floor being laid with brussels carpets and the rest of the furniture in keeping with that of a first-class residence. The office on the first floor, fronting on Spring street, is equally well arranged, the desks, fittings, furniture, etc., being of black walnut. This department is in charge of Mr. Harry Stirling, of Philadelphia. The store or wareroom, fronting on Diamond street, is furnished with box shelves, for fittings and brass works. A large force pump stands in the rear of this room, for the purpose of pumping water to a capacious cistern on the upper floor, which in its turn supplies the baths, closets, and the various parts of the building with water.

The stock consists of malleable fittings of every description;—tubes and casing; Brown's patent adjustable tongs, pliers, pipe-cutting machines, tube vices, stocks and dies, boiler tubes, brass and iron cocks of all sizes, &c., &c. In fact, the stock is made up of every variety of article required by gas fitters, oil wells or pipe lines. We particularly noticed the new Rock patent ring valve, which never requires grinding. It has a vertical motion only, and does not revolve. It leaves a clear and unobstructed passage for the flow of liquids, and requires only to be seen to be fully appreciated. They also have on hand working barrels, and keep Kneeland ball valves, plunger rods, &c., &c. The company have a large warehouse opposite the Oil Creek and Allegheny River Railroad depot, in which is kept a large stock of gas pipe, oil well tubing, casing, &c.

The Pascal Iron Works of Philadelphia is the largest of its kind in this country. The machinery and facilities which it possesses for turning out the best quality of work at the lowest possible figures, is enjoyed by very few other establishments either on this or the other side of the Atlantic. Their reputation is so well established in the oil region that it would seem quite unnecessary to enlarge upon it in this connection. They have branch offices for the sale of their manufactured articles in every part of the United States. The business here is under the able management of Mr. C. T. Fowler, of New York, and Mr. T. B. Hoover, of Franklin, both gentlemen being extensively and favorably known throughout the oil country. We congratulate the firm upon securing so desirable a location for their Titusville branch, as well as upon the acquisition of the courteous, capable and energetic gentlemen who are selected to represent the establishment.

HALMON'S BAKING POWDER, in glass jars. The best in the market. For sale by N. B. BARNSDALL & CO.

TO THE SMOKING PUBLIC.—We desire to call the special attention of our readers to the new brands of cigars introduced and copyrighted by the well known firm of Sharkey and Cortelyou, Franklin street, opposite the Mansion House, in this city, viz: "The Pride of Titusville" and "Six Sands." Any one that can appreciate a good cigar—and what smoker cannot!—should not fail to call for these brands. We have tried them. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Do not forget the name of the brands.

SUCKER-ROD JOINTS.

Explanation of Cuts.

No. 1— represents the Joint complete. No. 2—A longitudinal sectional view of a full Joint, showing the position of the wood in the socket when wedged, a glance at which must convince the most skeptical of the superiority of this Joint over any other. No. 3—A view of the end of the Rod, when turned ready for the Socket to be driven on, with the slot for the wedge and the wedge about being entered. No. 4—Represents the end of the wood, and shows the proper way to saw the slot (across the grain) into which the wedge is to be driven.

The above description and accompanying cuts, will enable any skilled person to make connection at the wells in a much shorter time than can be done with any other Rod, all the tools required being a small fine saw, one of our hollow augers and a few of our wedges. The wedges can be procured at any hardware store, gratis.

water from the ceiling above. Near the centre of the chamber seven skulls, with almost every bone that composes the human anatomy, were found—some protruding from the surface, and others as deep down as eighteen inches; some perfectly sound, and others so much decayed that they would not admit of removal. There was no order or regularity in the arrangement of the remains, for in one instance three skulls were taken out within less than a foot of each other. Nothing remains, or could be discovered, save the bones, the clothing and flesh having long since rotted away, and thus destroyed every evidence of identity.

No clue has been obtained, or is ever likely to be, obtained to unravel the mystery that shrouds this subterraneous chamber of the dead, and, thus far, all seems to be lost in conjecture and wonderment. Beyond question, however, this cave must have been used by the robbers and murderers who infested this country in early days as a place of deposit for their murdered victims. Its situation, the entrance being concealed, yet within twenty-five paces of the Columbia road, much traveled in early days; the security of this little eastern chamber from invasion, even should the main cave be entered, taken in connection with the fact that no human being—not even the aborigines—would have found a place so difficult of access for the simple burial of the dead, or deposited the remains with so little regard to order, all these considerations lead to the belief that the bones unearthed in this dim-vaulted sepulchre are the remains of unfortunate victims of crime. Within a few days past we have heard of a number of persons, mostly travelers, who many years ago disappeared while in this section of country, and were never afterwards heard of. One instance is remembered where a horse and buggy, belonging to a traveler from Virginia, was found loose upon the road near this cave, its owner missing and never heard from.

A GREAT THING

FOR EVERYBODY TO KNOW IN THE

City of Titusville.

There are a great many men who order their Clothes

FROM OTHER CITIES!

Because they think they get them Cheaper, but they are mistaken.

COME ONE, COME ALL! TO MY

ESTABLISHMENT,

And Look at my Goods and Examine my Work, and then you will see that you get

Better Work

and for the Same Price that you pay when you order from other Cities,

IF NOT CHEAPER!

It is true, I must pay Higher Wages for Tailors than Merchant Tailors in other Cities pay, but I keep only

First-Class Workmen;

But then, again, I save the High Wages, which a Cutter gets, as I Cut all Garments myself, therefore I can produce the Best and Neatest Styles

of Garments, and as Cheap as any other Merchant Tailor in or out of Titusville. So don't send your Orders and Money out of your own Town, where you will be well Fitted with Good Goods, made up in the Style.
